Challenges to monitor the impact of UN HR mechanisms at national level

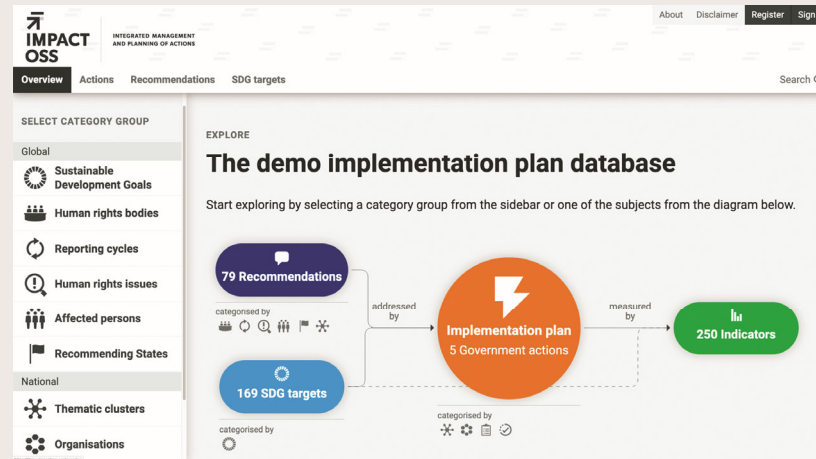

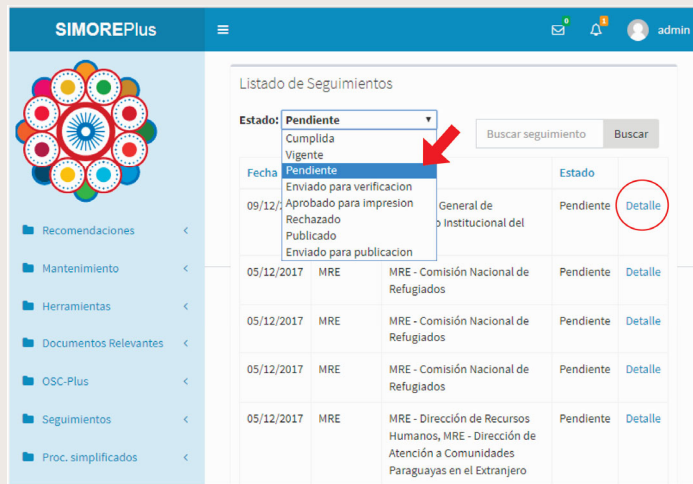

- Government ministries (and other implementing actors) working in siloes with little coordinated approach;
- Implementation gaps;
- Duplication of activities;
- Inconsistent messaging;
- Low levels of engagement with the international human rights system at the domestic level

The Digital Human Rights Tracking Revolution

Since the early 2010s, a number of initiatives concerned the introduction of innovative, online databases for:

- tracking and thematically clustering recommendations and decisions by the international and regional human rights mechanisms;
- linking specific recommendations to the SDGs;
- identifying responsible government ministries and/or agencies for implementation;
- developing follow-up plans, including timelines with all relevant domestic actors, to facilitate a coordinated monitoring of implementation; and
- managing information regarding the implementation of treaty provisions and recommendations.
