NMIRF

States have established these national mechanisms to ensure comprehensive, more efficient and sustainable approaches to reporting, engagement and follow-up in order to comply with human rights obligations

4 key capacities

- Engagement
- Coordination
- Consultation
- Information management

Engagement capacity

- engage and liaise with international and regional HR bodies
- organize and facilitate the preparation of reports to international and regional HR mechanisms and monitor the follow-up to recommendations

Coordination capacity

- gather, organize, coordinate and disseminate information and data from government entities, and other State actors, such as the national office for statistics, NHRI, parliament and the judiciary, for reporting and follow-up
- coordinate a national human rights action plan
- carry out structural cross-cutting projects that bring together the expertise of various public institutions to strengthen human rights implementation

Modalities of work for TB and UPR reports

In the preparatory process:

- identification of upcoming reporting obligations
- setting up a working group based on the provisions of a particular treaty to prepare an initial draft
- meeting for consultation with CSOs before submission to the relevant TB
- composition of delegation for interactive dialogue with TB and organisation of its work

In the follow-up process:

- circulation of TB recommendations to all members and making them publicly available
- periodic updating of the follow-up to the recommendations

Outcomes

- reporting on time and increased interministerial coordination
- strengthened multistakeholder involvement

Challenges

- retain high level participation
- ensure adequate human and material resources
- further develop cross-cutting projects
- maintain a dynamic and transparent intervention

THE BIGGEST CHALLENGE IS TO GUARANTEE RIGHTS ON THE GROUND
